

Psychometrics 360 Report

23-August-2013

Joe Sample

Name : Joe Sample

You requested feedback from the following individuals:

Louise Sample	Susan Sample
John Sample	Oscar Sample
Maximilian Sample	Michelangelo Sample
Charlie Sample	Anastasia Sample

Number of responses received:

Subordinate: 5 Supervisor: 1 Co-worker: 2 Total: 8

Guidelines for Reading Multi-Source Feedback:

Remember that your supervisor(s), co-workers, subordinates, and other respondents were asked for their honest feedback. They were asked to give ratings of your demonstrated behaviour to help you to identify your strengths and development areas. Therefore, you should view their responses in that context.

Your supervisor(s), co-workers, subordinates, and other respondents have provided you with their perceptions of your behaviour. This is how you come across to them, not necessarily what is objectively true.

You could receive both positive and negative feedback. Do not emphasize one or the other; look at both in balance.

Focus on looking ahead toward what you can do with the feedback:

- How you can transform negative feedback into positive change.
- How you can utilize your talents to leverage your effectiveness.

How to read the Report:

1. It is suggested that you look over the entire report first to get an overview of the results. Then look at specific competencies and the ratings you received.
2. On each page of results, you will find a chart of the specific ratings, a list of strengths, and a list of developmental areas, as well as a list of "gaps" (or areas of disagreement). Look at the highest rated competencies - these are your strengths. Think about how you could utilize those competencies more. Then look closely at the gaps. When understanding the "biggest gaps", think about why others might see you differently. Try to remove your emotion from the feedback. Focus on what you could do differently as a result of having the feedback.
3. The strengths and developmental areas indicated underneath each graph represent your relative strengths and developmental areas, not absolutes.
4. Remember that this report was prepared in a way that ensures the anonymity of the co-workers, subordinates, and other respondents who completed the questionnaire. It is normal to wonder who gave you certain ratings and why, but you will need to accept the feedback as offered. Understand individual ratings within the context of the overall feedback picture.

What two or three things does this person do that make him or her most effective?

- Calm under pressure and focused on the task without losing sight of the person. Great listener and very approachable. Dependable and great to work with.
- He is an excellent listener and puts the client's needs first. He is also compassionate and understanding and fair as a manager. He is honest, straightforward, and objective and literally puts her head down and just gets the job done. He is hard-working and willing to go above and beyond what is required.
- leads, organised, assertive
- Emotional control Open and approachable Applies experience to tasks
- Joe has a broad knowledge and good experience. He has good insight and is on the whole approachable and has effective people skills
- - Takes a logical approach to problem-solving. - Offers constructive advice to employees. - Very knowledgeable in are of expertise.
- 1. Always available to discuss a client matter and provides helpful advice. 2. Very knowledgeable about all aspects of the business and Psychology as a profession, guidelines and ethics as well a people needs.
- He understands the business and knows how to handle majority of situations that may arise. He is very considerate and understanding toward her team, especially when the team is feeling pressured.

What new skills or behaviours would make this person even more effective? (Consider today's needs and future needs.)

- Being firmer at times when dealing with manipulative people.
- He would benefit from being able to delegate tasks, particularly under times of stress, as he often takes on too much to handle at once.
- See the bigger picture and possibilities
- Able to see future consequences Increase communication with team Recognize achievements more often
- It would be more helpful to stagger new projects and changes. Communicate needs and expectations and check they are understood.
- Thinking more 'out of the box'
- At this point in time I can honestly not think of anything.
- He could delegate more work to others that can handle it, to not put to much pressure on herself.

What other comments do you have to aid in this individual's personal insight and development?

- Don't sell yourself short with your skills and value you add. Your humility is both a strength and weakness.
- He is occasionally unfairly critical of himself and his abilities, especially when having to meet unreasonable demands. He is highly capable, and while self-reflection is absolutely necessary, he could be kinder to herself when evaluating more negative outcomes.
- perfect. Conduct himself like a leader
- Think about consequences of actions on team members
- A more "bigger picture" approach in certain situations may sometimes be required.
- Be open to all new experiences!
- Such a wonderful individual who always seem to have others' best interest at heart. This comes through as a manager and as a result he is respected because of this. Joe never seems to be standing in the way of others developmental needs provided it suits the need of the business. He is fair, consistent in his behavior and generally just a lovely person to work with.
- He could attend more of the training's and workshops we have at the company to help her keep up with developments in the field.
